

Contents

Foreword	iii
Acknowledgements	v
Executive summary	vii
Introduction	1
Part 1: PARLIAMENTS, CITIZENS, AND THE INFORMATION SOCIETY
Chapter 1 - The Continuing Impact of ICT on the World of Parliaments	9
ICT trends and society	9
Implications for governance	10
Governing at a time of technology change	12
Responding to citizens' pressure for greater civic engagement	14
The challenges ahead	17
Different forms of digital divide	18
The paradox of too much information	18
Knowing what works	19
Risks to democratic dialogue	20
Costs and opportunities	20
Political, social and cultural differences	21
e-Parliament and democratic values	21
Chapter 2 - Communication between Parliaments and Citizens	23
Results and Findings from the 2007 survey	26
Results and Findings from the 2009 survey	27
Members' use of e-mail	28
Committees' use of e-mail	29
Members' use of websites	29
Committees' use of websites	30
Other methods being used	31
Methods used by income groups	35
Methods being planned or considered	36
Methods that will be used the most in the near term	36
Technologies projected to have the largest rates of growth	36
Evaluation of methods	37
Objectives of parliaments in using technologies for communication	38
When do parliaments consult citizens?	38
Challenges	40
Communication with young people	41
Citizens' use of technology to communicate with parliaments	43
Members, committees, and parliaments	44
Summary	46

Chapter 3 - Becoming an Open Parliament:
Evolving Standards for Transparency and Accessibility	49
Results and Findings from the 2007 survey	51
Results and Findings from the 2009 survey	52
General information	53
Legislation, budget and oversight (scrutiny)	56
Tools available to users	63
Usability and accessibility of the site	65
Intranets for Members only	67
Improvements planned	68
Summary	69

Part 2: BUILDING THE FOUNDATION OF E-PARLIAMENT

Chapter 4 - Envisioning, Planning, and Managing for e-Parliament	75
Results and Findings from the 2009 survey	77
Engagement of leaders	77
Involvement of stakeholders in proposing ideas and setting goals and objectives	78
Oversight and management	79
Vision statements, strategic planning, and project management	81
Staffing	82
Funding	83
Summary	84

Chapter 5 - Systems and Standards for Parliamentary Documents	87
Results and Findings from the 2009 survey	88
Document management systems for bills	88
Document management systems for other documents	91
Use of XML	94
Digital preservation programmes	98
Development of legislative open document standards	99
Brazilian Legal and Legislative Information Portal (LexML Brazil)	99
XML at the European Parliament	100
Integration of Akoma Ntoso and MetaLex/CEN	101
Summary	103

Chapter 6 - Library and Research Services	105
Results and Findings from the 2009 survey	107
Basic capacities	107
Digital services	108
Other services	112
Management issues	113
Summary	114

Chapter 7 - Responsive and Robust Technical Infrastructures	117
Results and Findings from the 2009 survey	119
Basic technical services	119
Support for parliamentary functions	122
Support for plenary activities	124
Service levels and ICT staff	127
Training	128
Summary	129
Chapter 8 - The State of e-Parliament in 2010	131
Results and Findings	133
E-parliament at the global level	133
Levels of ICT adoption	134
Levels of ICT adoption by income groups	135
Levels of ICT adoption by selected regions	137
The impact on members of parliaments	138
ICT and the values of parliamentary democracy	140
Summary	142
Part 3: STRENGTHENING LEGISLATURES THROUGH INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION
Chapter 9 - Cooperation and Collaboration	147
Recent progress in inter-parliamentary cooperation	148
IFLA Section on Parliamentary Library and Research Services	148
The Africa Parliamentary Knowledge Network	149
Secretaries General Forum of Asia-Pacific Parliaments	151
Inter-parliamentary network in Latin America and the Caribbean	151
Extent of participation in parliamentary networks	151
The nature of inter-parliamentary cooperation and collaboration	153
Specific areas of ICT support	155
The challenge for the international community	157
Summary	159
Chapter 10 - The e-Parliament Framework 2010 - 2020	161
Key areas for a collaborative approach to institution building	162
Establish national and international policies to create an Information Society that is equitable and inclusive	162
Enhance the connection between legislatures and constituencies	164
Improve the equality of access to the law and the lawmaking process of the country	165
Ensure that all legislatures around the world can harness ICT tools in the service of the legislative, oversight and representative functions	167
Develop a more robust and well coordinated programme of technical assistance	171
Essential ingredients for achieving success	176
Collaboration among parliaments and interaction with the donor community	176
Integrating ICT with other support actions	176
The way forward	177
Summary	177

Major Findings, Recommendations, and Conclusions	179
How parliaments are doing: major findings	179
Communicating with the public	179
Standards for transparency and accessibility	180
Vision, strategic planning, and effective management	181
Systems and standards for parliamentary documents	181
Library and research services	181
Building a responsive and robust technical infrastructure	182
The state of e-parliament in 2010	182
The impact on members of parliaments	183
Cooperation and collaboration at the international level	184
What can be done: recommendations for moving forward	185
Policies	185
Planning and management	186
Communication	186
Transparency and accountability	186
Technical infrastructure and information support	186
Regional and global cooperation	187
Conclusions	187
Bibliography	191
Boxes	197
Figures	199
ANNEXES	203
Methodology for assessing the state of e-parliament	204
Geographical groupings	209
Classification of economies	210
Global Survey of ICT in Parliaments 2009	213